

Kevin Lee

Kevin Lee is a cellist currently studying at Peabody Institute of The Johns Hopkins University under Alan Stepansky. He began studying cello at the age of eight and has since developed a passion for performing and a deep appreciation for music.

Kevin has held performances in famous venues such as Carnegie Hall, Rockport Shalin Liu Performance Center, and Jordan Hall. He has also participated in a variety of ensembles, including school orchestras, chamber groups, and he has been a member of the Boston Youth Symphony Orchestras and the Boston Philharmonic Youth Orchestra.

Kevin continues his musical training through private study and performances, seeking opportunities that support his artistic growth. He aspires to keep pursuing cello and build a career centered around performance and collaboration.